

Terms and conditions

I agree with the following Uganda Civil Aviation Authority Terms and Conditions for use of the AIS Website, and by registering and/or making use of the services, I accept these terms and conditions irrevocably and without reservation.

The terms and conditions set out below apply exclusively to the web services provided by the Uganda Civil Aviation Authority. Other terms and conditions are only valid if expressly acknowledged in writing. Failure to acknowledge other proposed terms and conditions, whether individual or general, shall not be construed as implied acceptance by Uganda Civil Aviation Authority of such terms and conditions, even though the services are provided. The terms and conditions applicable are the Versions in force at the time services are requested or provided. It is the customers' responsibility to inform themselves of the current versions from the website before requesting the services. Services are provided in the form available at the time of provision.

Registration for access to the system

By registering, customers apply for a user account that enables them to make use of services via the internet. The customer undertakes to provide correct and complete information. It is the customer's responsibility to inform Uganda Civil Aviation Authority of any changes in its data without undue delay. Incomplete and/or incorrect information will not be processed; respectively Uganda Civil Aviation Authority is entitled to deactivate the user account.
